GENERAL INFORMATION:

Layla is the new table lamp. Its shape reminds the old oil lamps and nightstand lights, warm and reassuring objects that give the room an intimate atmosphere, recalling a domestic imaginary. These glass table lamps are handblown and characterized by curvy and cozy shapes. The finishes chosen by Serena Confalonieri diversify the upper part, transparent and monochromatic, from the lower one, opaque and striped. The lamp thus becomes entirely a lighting body: in the upper part the light is more direct, filtered only by the color of the transparent glass, while in the lower part the opaque glass allows only a part of it to pass, transforming itself into a translucent body. The result is a kaleidoscopic mix of colors, a perfect dialogue between form and decoration.
